Chennai AI Week
Media kit.

Use these files to introduce the week, credit the organiser, or prepare an approved collaboration.

01 / IDENTITY

The name comes first.

Use the full event name on first mention. CAI is our compact mark, not a replacement for a readable event title. The separate Curious Commons identity identifies the organiser.

02 / USE WITH CARE

Give it room.

Leave clear space of at least half a capital letter's height around the wordmark. Use the supplied artwork: do not stretch, rotate, redraw, add shadows, or place it on a busy image.

Profile pictures use a pure-white background. Keep all letters inside the circular crop. Use SVG for scalable artwork and the 2048 px profile PNG for social accounts.

Keep partner marks separate and clearly labelled. A logo in this kit is not permission to announce a partnership. Confirm dates, venues and participants before publishing event material.

03 / COLOUR & TYPE

A consistent character.

Ink
#123D39

Accent
#25745C

Paper
#F2F5E9

Highlight
#D7EF66

Instrument Serif

Names and short headlines. Regular and supplied artwork; never simulate weight.

Space Grotesk

Descriptions, navigation and practical information. Use the included font files and licences.

Use dark ink on pale surfaces and white on dark ink. Bright accents are surfaces, not colours for small text. RGB values are digital references. Ask your printer for colour conversion and a physical proof.

Chennai AI Week

Chennai AI Week is a place to build, test and discuss useful AI. By Curious Commons.

Chennai's engineers, researchers, founders and creators bring different questions to AI. We want to make room for working through them together: building, testing, sharing what works and being honest about what doesn't.

> First edition taking shape. Dates and programme to be announced. No speakers, venues or partners are implied by this kit.

Organised by Curious Commons. Press and collaboration enquiries: hello@curiouscommons.com.
